October’s Program

A big Thank You to Cowlitz Tribe Shaman Roy Wilson for speaking about his heritage and Cowlitz Landing. The meeting was well attended and there was so much good information!

Post Card Photo's

A member's collection of over 50 photos of vintage Lewis County area are being scanned and added to our LCGS Website. Anyone who would like to share a few favorite photos can bring them to any Genealogy Meeting or email to Teresa at jordanjunction@gmail.com.

Digital Archive Project

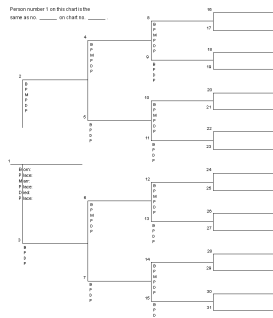

What will you do with your genealogy research?

Do you have family members that want to carry on the research work?

Or consider a donation to the local historical museum maybe?

After 40+ years of handwritten research, one member of the LCGS has decided it's time to put it all in digital archive format. She will then provide copies to family members when requested. The process includes inputting family group sheets into a software program (Legacy) and scanning photos and other documents of research. It's a long process however then you need to ask what to do with the handwritten originals?

PEDIGREES - The Pedigree Book for members will be at each meeting. Feel free to glance through the book to check who other members are researching.

Pedigrees should be updated every year to reflect any changes or additions, including the date. DO WE HAVE YOUR PEDIGREE? We like to print a one page pedigree in each newsletter.

Lewis County Vital Statistics

If membership form not available, just jot down updated information on a piece of paper. THANKS SO MUCH

A Major Milestone in Genealogy Search

A major milestone was reached this week in online genealogy search. An additional 300 million records were added to the Genealogy Search Engine. The free and very popular Genealogy Search Engine now searches over 3.0 billion free ancestral records from around the world.

Free genealogy records do exist on the internet. They are just scattered across many hard-to-find websites. The powerful Genealogy Search Engine helps bring them all together in one convenient location. Here are some stats on the process:

- Over 1,000 websites with known ancestral records are constantly scanned for new content.
- Over 3.0 billion free genealogy records are then indexed by the search engine.
- The Genealogy Search Engine has become incredibly popular in the genealogy community. It receives over 1 million queries a year from people looking for their ancestors.
- Search results are delivered quickly. Duplicate records are automatically removed from the results. This streamlining process allows people to efficiently focus their time and effort on discovering new ancestors.

The Genealogy Search Engine has become the most powerful free search engine in the world dedicated specifically to finding ancestral records from around the internet. It is part of GenealogyInTime Magazine's mandate to find creative and innovative ways to help people connect with their ancestors for free. You want to find your ancestors. We want to help.

Use the Genealogy Search Engine to search 3.0 billion free ancestral records.

Use the Family Tree Search Engine to search an additional 3.8 billion records found in online family trees and genealogy forums. This is a good way to see if anyone else is researching your family members.

Read A Guide to Performing Online Genealogy Searches to learn how to get started on your genealogy search.

GenealogyInTime Magazine
November 2013

Here are some highlights from the latest update:

- Several additional online historic newspaper collections have been indexed.
- The digital archives from several libraries and universities in the US and Canada were added. Many of these archives contain significant photo collections.

The latest additions to the Genealogy Search Engine include significant new photo archives.

- Several more online memorial websites containing obituaries were indexed.
- Several additional historic websites from Canada (such as Canadiana.org) have now been indexed.
- Newspapers.com was removed from the search engine since they no longer provide free views of historic newspapers. - See more at: <http://www.genealogyintime.com/news/a->

Ancestry.com Buys Find A Grave

Ancestry.com announced the purchase of cemetery website Find A Grave. This has potentially big implications for genealogy. In this article, we look beyond the press release and discover some of the facts behind the Ancestry.com purchase of what was the largest free and independent genealogy website.

The purchase of Find a Grave changes the competitive landscape for genealogy. Prior to the purchase, Find A Grave was the third largest genealogy website overall and the largest independent and free genealogy website. Now Find A Grave is part of Ancestry.com

Ancestry.com now controls the first, third, sixth, seventh, ninth and tenth largest genealogy websites in the world. Source: Top 100 Genealogy Websites for 2013.

Find A Grave was originally created in 1995 by its founder Jim Tipton in Salt Lake City as a way of finding the graves of famous people. It has since grown to become the number one cemetery website in the world. It currently has approximately 106 million grave records.

In late 2012, Find A Grave surpassed FamilySearch.org in internet traffic to become the largest free genealogy website (see the article Top 100 Genealogy Websites for 2013). According to our estimate (based on recent Alexa rankings), Find A Grave currently gets about 12,800 visitors a day (versus about 10,000 visitors/day for FamilySearch.org).

Ancestry.com purchased Find A Grave for an undisclosed amount of money. They have pledged to keep Find A Grave free. They have also pledged additional resources to the website to develop (for example) apps, presumably to make it easier for people to upload cemetery data. Certainly Ancestry.com will want to keep the goodwill of all the people who contribute cemetery information to Find A Grave for free. - See more at: <http://www.genealogyintime.com/news/ancestry-buys-find-a-grave-page1.html#sthash.joaBNT0o.dpuf>

Ancestry.com continues to dominate the genealogy industry. With the purchase of Find A Grave, Ancestry.com now directly controls 11 of the top 50 genealogy websites.
